

SOUTHEASTERN ILLINOIS ELECTRIC CO-OPERATIVE moved out of the building in top photo, familiarly known as the "REA garage" in northeast Harrisburg, a few days ago, and although there is no announcement from the company, it is reported that the Halliburton Oil Well Cementing Co. has leased the structure for a five-year period and will move into it. The SEIEC moved its general headquarters to Eldorado several years ago but kept its concrete building on Route 45 for warehouse purposes. Now, however, it has moved out and the co-op has erected a 40 by 100 foot metal Butler building, shown in the lower photo, immediately north of its headquarters building on Route 142 south of Eldorado for a warehouse. To the left in the photo can be seen a four-foot retaining wall, which has been filled in by levelling off the premises, and has been surfaced with rock. Heavy line construction equipment materials are kept on the dock. The retaining wall runs for 500 feet but only a portion is shown.

Transportation Industry Hit By Steel Strike

Schedule Furloughs For Thousands of Railroad Workers

PITTSBURGH — The pile-driver economic blows of the three-day nationwide strike of 650,000 United Steelworkers hit the transportation industry today with furloughs scheduled for thousands of "noncombatant" workers.

Railroads alone scheduled lay-offs for upwards of 30,000 workers by the weekend. Truck, lake and driver workers also faced hard times.

With the evidence of a prolonged shutdown piling up, the U. S. Mediation Service abandoned its sideline position and scheduled "exploratory" talks with each side in the bitter contract dispute. But it did not intervene immediately.

Separate Conferences Planned
Mediation Director Joseph F. Finnegan said he would confer separately Thursday with David J. McDonald, USW president, and John A. Stephens, U. S. Steel Corp. vice president and chief industry bargainer.

Chances of bringing the sides together this week appeared slim. Both the union and industry seemed adamant in their positions in the deadlocked contract dispute which led to the strike at 12:01 a. m. Sunday.

The union calls the company-proposed five-year, no-strike contract "inadequate." The companies call the union's demands "exorbitant."

DETROIT — The giant United Auto Workers union Monday pledged its support to the striking United Steel Workers union.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther wrote USW officials that "the steel workers have been forced to strike by the irresponsible anti-social attitude of the steel industry magnates."

Muddy, Dorris Heights Consider Buying City Water

Delegations from two nearby communities — Muddy and Dorris Heights — appeared before the members of the Harrisburg Water Board Monday evening to inquire about the possibility of purchasing water from the city of Harrisburg.

No definite action was taken, but members of the water board spoke favorably on the two propositions.

Mayor John Molinarolo of Muddy and his son John, stated they were exploring the possibility of getting water into the village of Muddy. They propose to lay a four or six inch water line from the filter plant in Harrisburg to Muddy.

"We are just getting started on the proposition and want to know if the water will be for sale," Molinarolo said.

Board members explained there could not be additional water users added until after the filter plant addition is completed, but suggested that the Molinarolos continue with the study and come before the water board at a later date, when both sides would have more information.

It was the same story for the delegation from Dorris Heights. Each group estimated there would be approximately 60 water customers in their communities.

Slayer of Two Women, Girl, Killed in Tree

WARREN, Ohio — Alfred (Buck) Wilson, bragged killer of two women and a young girl, died Monday night with a highway patrolman's bullet in his brain.

Wilson, 37, who murdered his two sisters-in-law and a 16-year-old girl in a bloody rage, was cornered in a tree Monday by three highway patrolmen.

The patrolmen blasted Wilson from his perch before he had a chance to use any of the four bullets in his .38-caliber.

Wilson was such a skilled woodsman that he eluded his searchers for 11 days. He evaded a 250-man posse last Friday and hid out in an abandoned building in the center of nearby Leavittsburg, 100 yards from mobile search headquarters at the Warren Township fire station.

Wilson went on his bloody rampage June 21 when he set out to find his common-law wife, Juanita, 35, who had filed assault and battery charges against him and threatened to leave him.

Sen. Kefauver Suggests Eisenhower Repudiate GOP Campaign Document

WASHINGTON — Sen. Estes Kefauver suggested today that President Eisenhower immediately repudiate a Republican campaign document claiming Communists want a Democratic presidential victory this year.

The Tennessee Democrat, seeking his party's presidential nomination, said that "if Mr. Eisenhower wants to disavow such despicable and dirty politics, now is the time for him to do it—not six months from now after the campaigns are all over."

Kefauver, in a statement, added his comment to a round of Democratic attacks made on the campaign document on the Senate floor Monday. The Democrats demanded that "responsible" Senate Republicans disown the document or plead guilty to "disgraceful" campaign tactics.

The controversial document was a memorandum prepared by the staff of the Senate Republican Policy Committee as campaign ammunition against the Democrats. It was circulated last week with a note that neither GOP senators nor the committee was responsible for its statements.

The document said the "official Communist line" is to seek the election of a Democratic president.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.), supported by acting Democratic leader Earl C. Clements (Ky.) and Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), led the attack on the document.

Only a handful of Republicans was present on the Senate floor at the time. But Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) conceded that the document's charge was unjustified.

Knowland said he considered Democratic senators "as patriotic and devoted to their country as anyone on this (Republican) side of the aisle."

House Committee Votes To Hike Veterans Benefits

TWO AIRLINERS CRASHED HERE—Aerial view of the Grand Canyon shows where United Airlines DC7 and a TWA Super Constellation crashed together in commercial aviation's worst disaster. The planes carried a total of 128 passengers and crewmen on eastbound runs from Los Angeles. It is believed that the two planes collided in the air before crashing into the Grand Canyon. Only burned areas and a few small pieces of wreckage were left on the canyon walls to mark the disaster. (NEA Telephoto)

Cost of Bill is Estimated $172 Million Yearly

Measure Provides Across-Board Increase In Disability Payments

By United Press
The House Veterans Committee voted today to increase by 10 per cent or more government benefits paid to most veterans who are disabled in military service.

The bill's cost was estimated at 172 million dollars a year. It would provide an across-the-board increase of 10 per cent in payments for service-connected disability ratings from 10 to 90 per cent. Veterans disabled 100 per cent would get a 27 per cent—from $181 to $225 a month.

The bill also would provide $30 monthly increases for some seriously disabled veterans who now receive special awards ranging from $279 to $420 a month.

Extra compensation for dependents of seriously disabled veterans also would be increased by 10 per cent.

Elsewhere in Congress: Defense: Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and his Democratic critics got into a first-class wrangle during his final appearance before the Senate's air power subcommittee. Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), long-time Wilson critic, suggested that the secretary would perhaps like to apologize for his recent "phony" comment on the Senate drive to boost the Air Force budget. Wilson refused, but said "it would not be out of order for certain senators to apologize to me."

Viruses: A public service official called on the Senate Appropriations committee to put up an additional $480,000 for laboratory work to develop ways to distinguish between polio and diseases which look very much like it.

Air Safety: Senator George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) called for an immediate Senate investigation of the Civil Aeronautics Administration to determine if its operations are keeping pace with air traffic needs.

Remodel Building To House Limerick Finance Company
The building at 22 West Poplar street owned by Mrs. Guy Patterson and son, Guy K. Patterson, is being remodeled and redecorated to house the offices of the Limerick Finance Corp.

William Brown, manager of the local Limerick office, said he hoped to be in the new quarters by Aug. 15. For the past ten years the offices have been in the Rose building on North Main.

The Durham hardware store, now adjacent to the Limerick offices, will take over the room vacated by the finance company, and thus will have double the space the store has at present. An archway will be cut between the two rooms and self-service fixtures installed.

The front has been torn out of the Patterson building and the King Glass Co. will install a new front, using Beauty Stone masonry.

Eight persons are employed in the Limerick office here, which serves Saline, Gallatin, Hamilton, Hardin, Pope and most of White counties.

Find New-Born Baby in Alley

CHRISTOPHER, Ill. — A newborn boy was found in a box in an alley today by a telephone operator on her way to work.

The infant was taken to a hospital, where doctors said he had a chance of survival.

The baby was in a box in a pile of rubbish that would have been hauled to a dump later today. Authorities checked hospitals and doctors' offices in an effort to locate the mother, if she seeks medical help.

About Town And Country

MUSIC DEPT.: The Rev. Waldo Adams, Mrs. Adams and their young son were in Harrisburg last week because of the illness of Mrs. Adams' father, Orin Wise, who was in the hospital.

Saturday they took Mr. Wise back to their home in Quincy, Ill., with them, Mr. Wise making the trip in an ambulance from the Harrisburg funeral home.

Taking the ambulance were Vernard Clayton and his son-in-law, Jim Williams.

It was getting pretty late when the two local men started home and it was nearing midnight (or there about) when the ambulance rolled into Jacksonville.

The ambulance pulled up to a stop sign, saw an arrow pointing to the left which designated they should make a left turn at the intersection, and proceeded.

They had just rounded the corner when a state policeman stepped from the sidewalk and stopped them.

He walked up to Vernard's side of the ambulance and said:

"What?" Vernard asked, figuring maybe he had misunderstood the officer.

"A cornet," the officer retorted.

"Got a cornet?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," replied Clayton. "What do you mean by 'Got a cornet'?" Clayton thought the officer was nuts.

Then his son-in-law, young Williams, broke into the conversation: "Oh yes, we have a cornet."

And at that point Clayton thought that Williams was nuts, too.

Williams turned and reached into the back of the ambulance and came up with a cornet.

"Been waiting here two hours for you to show up," the officer said. "I'm to take it and get it back to the boy."

Williams had remembered that when the group left Harrisburg, the young Adams boy had put his cornet in the ambulance. Then forgot all about it, and when the ambulance left Quincy, the cornet started on its trip back to Harrisburg.

Missing the cornet and knowing it had to be in the ambulance, the Adamses had called the state police to intercept the instrument.

The officer in Jacksonville got the cornet.

Showers May Dampen Fourth In Illinois Areas

By United Press
Showers may dampen the Fourth of July holiday in parts of Illinois, forecasters said today.

The Weather Bureau at Chicago predicted partly cloudy skies for Illinois Wednesday, with scattered showers and thundershowers, mostly in northern sections of the state.

With thousands of motorists expected to jam Illinois highways, state and local police mapped a 30-hour "death watch" starting at 6 p. m. today, in an effort to reduce the fatality toll.

The Chicago Motor Club issued a grim forecast that 15 persons will perish on Illinois roads during the 30-hour period.

That would nearly equal the state's Memorial Day death toll of 16. Illinois led the nation in deaths during that one-day holiday period. Of the 15 predicted deaths, the Chicago Motor Club said 10 would occur downstate, 3 in suburban Cook County, and 2 in Chicago. In addition, 57 traffic injuries were predicted for the state.

At Chicago, all leaves were cancelled for uniformed police. A traffic detail of 6,000 men was to begin a 40-hour watch at 4 p. m. State police at Springfield arranged to use airplanes to spot traffic violators at critical safety points.

Improving the Primaries

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

The presidential primary system in America is not likely to be scrapped despite the criticism that always seem to attend its operations in campaign years. Both the people and the politicians want it.

Since this is the way it stands, the only practical discussion of the system is that which concerns its possible improvement.

The people themselves indicate their liking for a true national primary in which each party would nominate its choice for president by popular vote, in the same manner now used to elect in the fall.

This plan, however, has certain drawbacks. Except for the drafting of party platforms, the national conventions would no longer be a factor.

Many might say: "Well so what?" But the result would be to constrict the political leaders' role in candidate-picking so thoroughly that they would be most reluctant to support such a proposal.

There are those who feel, too, that a national primary would place intolerable burdens of cost and effort on both the candidates and their parties. The advent of television already has sent the costs of the fall election campaign zooming, and it is hard to see where the money would come from.

Others suggest that a better course is simply to extend the present system of primaries to cover all 48 states. Right now just 18 have them.

This would mean that the people in the various states would choose delegates to the national conventions and express their presidential preferences as they now do in existing primary states.

The convention as the final testing place would be retained, which could make this arrangement palatable to the politicians.

State and regional differences being what they are, results of the preference voting would be binding in some states and not in others. That's the way it is today in primary states.

Thus a considerable flexibility of maneuver would be left to candidates and party officials involved in the nominating process.

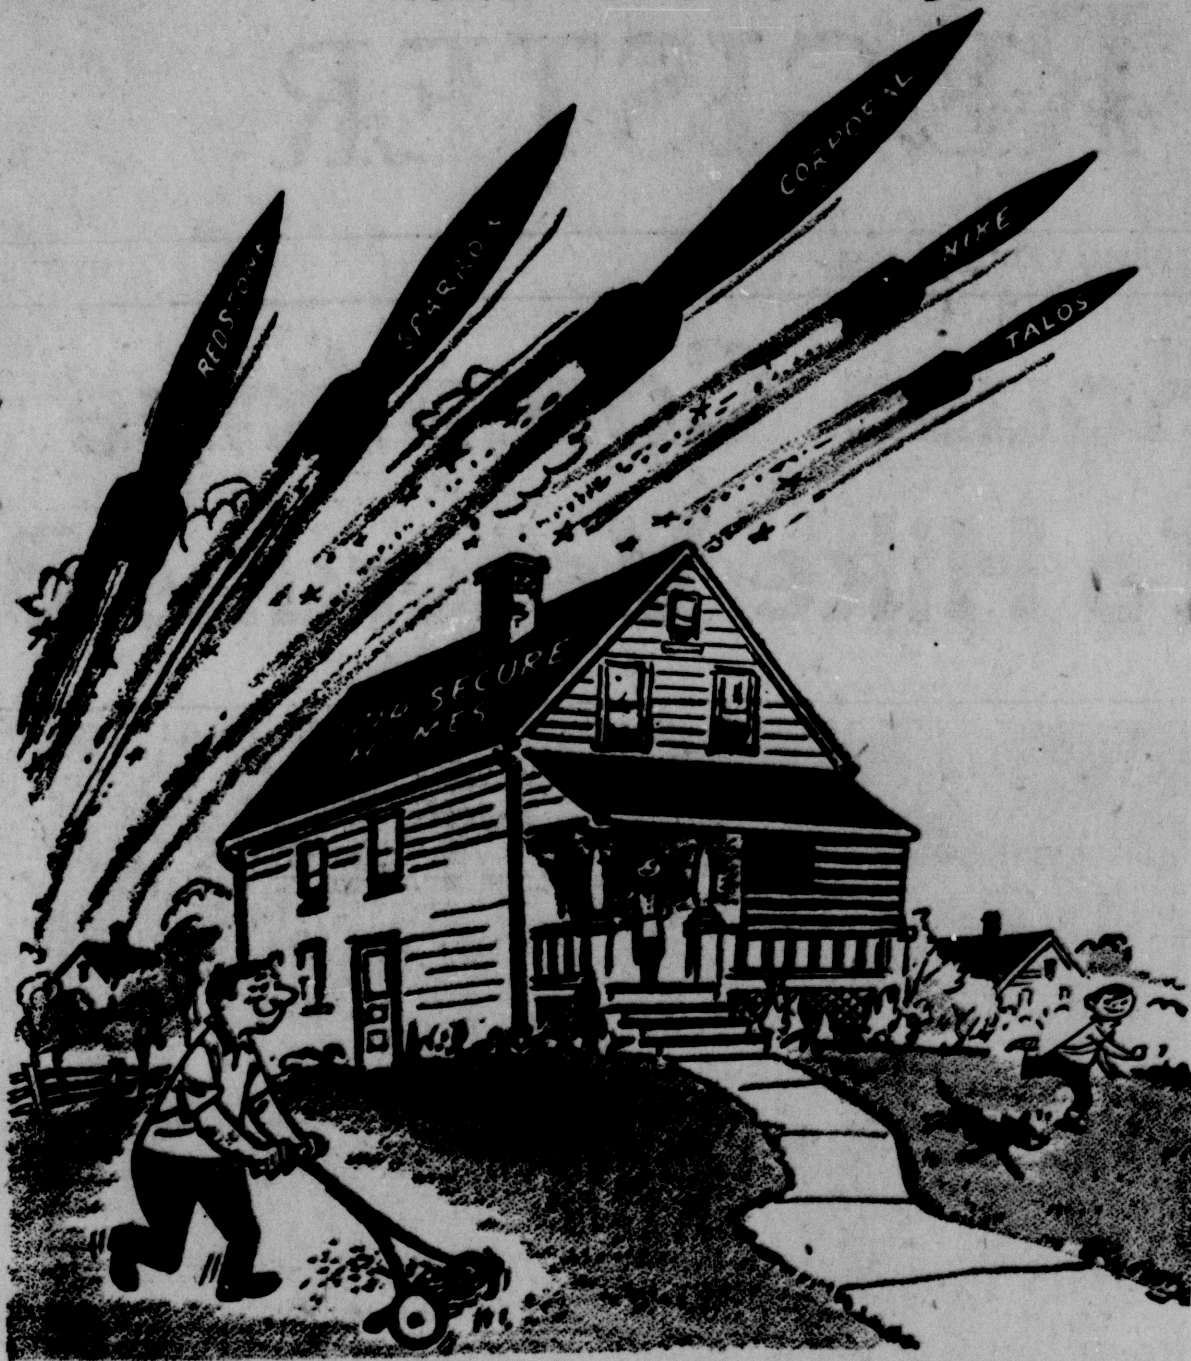

At the same time, with all states taking part, a much stronger indication of popular sentiment would be given and political managers would be unlikely to buck a strong tide if one developed.

The trouble with the present setup is that it is plainly too piecemeal. The cues the primaries give are important because the politicians want to rely on them. But they are much less accurate and representative than they ought to be.

It would be desirable of course if the various primaries were less a legal hodgepodge than they are. Yet complete uniformity would seem neither possible nor wise.

Naturally an extension of the present system would bring some

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON says: The Techniques Of War Have Changed Since Our Fathers Forged Independence At Concord And Lexington; Eleven Men Were Killed At Lexington; Several Hundred Millions Would Be Killed In A War With Russia.

CONCORD, Mass.—Ducks waddle on the bank of the Concord river unconcerned that they are in the shadow of the bridge "where once embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard round the world," but they don't seem concerned about it... tourists, more concerned, snap pictures. They point cameras up the rolling hills from which 300 farmers armed with pitchforks and squirrel rifles came down to the bridge to turn back British Red Coats... A lady from Iowa tells her 7-year-old that it was here that the independence movement began in April 1776, how it swept down to Philadelphia, how Thomas Jefferson drafted the Declaration of Independence in July, how a little group of patriots signed it on July 4, how, understandably, they didn't have the courage to proclaim it or ring the Liberty Bell until four days later... Across the field from the bridge a guide takes a group through the Old Manse, home of Nathaniel Hawthorne and the family of Ralph Waldo Emerson. Around it once revolved a cask of strong thinkers, individualistic thinkers—Henry D. Thoreau, Amos Bronson Alcott, the Concord Summer School of Philosophy and Literature... Joe McCarthy would have called it a Communist cell, and the Minute Women of Texas and California today would have been shocked at the revolutionary ideas of the Minute Men who defended the bridge at Concord... Even Thomas Jefferson, who (after the Revolution) wrote "the tree of liberty must be watered by a little blood" might have been jolted today for proposing overthrow of government by force.

PAUL REVERE GOT CAUGHT Children play in the late afternoon of the same burdens of added cost and effort that would confront candidates in a national primary. But on other counts the preference and delegate-choice primary pattern seems more suited to the political realities and thus more likely to win broad approval in the nation.

That also may be why the world may be reaching a military stalemate in which even the rulers of the Kremlin pause in the face of the fearful awesomeness of atomic war.

AN TRAGEDY When Congress investigates the tragic air collision over the deserts of Arizona it should also investigate sagging morale in the Civil Aeronautics Administration—the agency responsible for the safety of the airways.

The TVA-United Air Lines collision was the first in history between two scheduled air lines. But insiders who have watched the way morale has dropped inside the CAA aren't surprised. Some 14,000 employees have been seething with discontent, ever since politics became more important in the CAA than air efficiency, and ever since the CAA has been run by the Department of Commerce.

Beginning July 1, one day after the accident, the CAA has been divided into two parts: 1, airways engineering, 2, air traffic control. But the order was issued long before and the department over the reorganization had been going on for six months.

More important, the Commerce Department for six months delayed the so-called "five-year plan" for the airways which included a radar network by which every plane in the air would be under observation from ground control stations. This would have permitted CAA traffic directors to have watched the two giant planes as they flew out of Los Angeles. It might have prevented the tragic crash.

TRICK photography is amusing because the pictures we see appear to lend authenticity to fantastic views of make-believe.

A picture of a man walking on the ceiling, or a photograph of a man with four or five eyes shocks our sense of reality. Composite pictures may cause us to smile because of their incongruity, but they do not convince us that there is any cause to believe that the law of the universe and of God have been completely upset.

We are told that these pictures are to create impressions, to depict abstract ideas or to encourage thinking about relationships. Regardless of the mental stimulation of these photographic endeavors, the fact remains that many people look at living people more than they look at works of art.

People create impressions even more than pictures do. We know our friends for their depth of reality, or for the tricks they use in presenting themselves. Some people are living abstractions. Others encourage our thoughts about good human relations.

Our lives ought to be patterned to stimulate thinking in terms of higher spiritual values. No trick of appearance can long hide the absence of God in our lives. No expression can cover hatred, deceit or lack of faith.

Let us so live that we may portray the presence of God's love. We can inspire those who watch us so that they will want to have God present in their lives, too, and in their homes and in their nation.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Miniaturization Is On the March

PHILADELPHIA (U)—The American boast of "bigger and better" products has undergone a partial reversal, according to recent book-let published by a manufacturer of precision metal products.

Instead of "bigger," said the Standard Pressed Steel Co. booklet, the word should be "smaller."

Since the end of World War II, a new idea—miniaturization—has crept into the minds of product designers.

Such products as vacuum cleaners, electric shavers, kitchen ranges, lawnmowers and even the American home itself, have been affected by miniaturization, said the company. All are smaller, more compact and all have more function and convenience than their pre-war counterparts.

A new type of switch, developed by Bell Telephone Laboratories, is one of the most spectacular examples of miniaturization. Called a silicon junction, it makes possible the reduction of a complete telephone exchange from a two or three-story building to the size of a small room.

The steel company predicts that competition in the field of miniaturization will bring even more miniaturization in the years ahead.

Miss Lotella Wesley, Phillip Cole Wed In Ceremony at Raleigh Baptist Church

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cole

Miss Lotella Wesley, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Clold Wesley, Piasa, Ill., became the bride of Phillip Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Cole, Harrisburg, in a double ring ceremony June 16 at 7 p. m. at the Raleigh Baptist church. Baskets of white flowers and branched candelabra formed the setting for the ceremony performed by Rev. Clold Wesley, father of the bride.

Wearing a ballerina length gown of hand clipped chantilly lace over satin and tulle, the bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Quentin Swan. Her gown was designed with a tight fitting bodice, short sleeves, and a scoop scalloped neckline and styled with a full bouffant skirt of nylon tulle and taffeta. The ballerina length veil of silk illusion was held to a scroll beaded tiara of tiny seed pearls with a matching embroidery scroll outlining the hem. A cascade of white roses and white carnations with streamers of white satin formed her wedding bouquet. Her jewelry, a strand of white pearls, was a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Quentin Swan, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown was of pale yellow nylon net over taffeta with a full ballerina length skirt. She wore a matching headband of yellow flowers and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisies.

Mrs. Lois Wesley Hammond of Piasa, sister of the bride, and Miss Norma Lou Bumpus, Mt. Vernon, were bridesmaids. Their dresses were identical ballerina length gowns of pale blue and pink. They wore matching headbands and carried colonial bouquets of daisies to match their gowns.

Bill Cole, brother of the bridegroom, of Harrisburg, was best man and groomsmen were Bill Hollida, Benton, and Stanley Horst, Hoyleton.

A niece of the bride, Miss Shirley Jo Swan, was flower girl and ushers were Mike Hays and Robert Stump, Harrisburg.

The Rev. Delmar Feazel, uncle of the bride, presented the musical selections, "Day of Golden Promise," "Because," and "Wedding Prayer," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Everett Dougherty.

Slapping, Scratching Season Has Arrived; Record Hatch of Mosquitoes

URBANA - CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — The slapping and scratching season has arrived for Illinoisans.

Prof. William R. Horsfall of the University of Illinois today said that heavy rains and warm weather in many parts of the state during the last two weeks of June have sped development of millions of mosquito eggs. Normally this combination of wide-spread rain and warm temperatures does not come until the first week of July.

Ten days after hatching, the winged stingers are out for blood. So now and the first three weeks of July will be a time of slapping and scratching for humans. And later in the summer there may be a second generation of mosquitoes.

The Illinois entomologist has studied the brown woods mosquito in the state from Chicago to Cairo. He has found that the female adult mosquitoes unerringly seek out floodplains—lands subject to flooding—to lay their eggs. This comes during June and the early part of July, and perhaps later in the summer for a second generation.

The eggs may lay dormant for a year or more, but they will not hatch until submerged by waters of warm temperatures—about 60 degrees Fahrenheit. When heavy summer rains come flooding bottom lands and banks of streams with warm water the eggs immediately hatch. Horsfall says.

In about a week or 10 days the tiny wigglers turn into tumblers and then become flying adults, one-quarter inch in length.

Taking to the air, the adults seek their necessary blood meals—from warm-blooded animals or humans—in nearby urban areas.

They start flying from the floodlands at dusk, aiming toward lighted and hazy horizons that mean centers of population. Thus, Chicago and its suburbs will attract millions of mosquitoes from the Des Plaines and Fox River valleys. Other communities will get their swarms from nearby streams, rivers, and pools.

The adults can sense blood sources by the warmth of bodies, Horsfall says. By 9 p. m. the blood meals are mostly over, and the mosquitoes bed down for the night in nearby vegetation and trees. In the early hours of the dawn the adults are up again.

It takes two to three blood meals before an adult female is ready to develop her 50-80 eggs.

The female mosquito, Horsfall and others have found, lays her eggs among leaves and debris below the high water marks of flood plains. He has found some areas with as many as 40,000 eggs to the square foot; a recent survey estimated a one and one-half acre woodland pool near Urbana contained 55 million eggs.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schultz and children, Ricky Judy, Carolyn and Mary Jane of Centralia, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dunn. Mrs. Schultz is a niece of Mrs. Dunn.

Frank swung to his saddle. Chantry, he saw with pleasure, had replaced his rifle. He withdrew it from the boot, opening the breech and checking to find it still loaded. Lifting his eyes a bare fraction he was able to make out a figure standing in the shadows before the Alhambra porch — Lew Chantry was keeping an eye on his town.

Then at the edge of town he drew in the black, turning for a final look at the street. Resentment swept over him as the shock of the shooting returned. His mind was full of that scene in George La Tour's yard, of Norring's icy manner, and revulsion of this town's evil carried its bitterness through him. Norring had admitted a meeting at the bank between Hackett and himself and the bank clerk, and Frank understood the order had gone out to break him.

While the raw anger swelled through him the sore spots from his fighting with Milo began to ache once more. Rancor filled him. He slipped the saddle gun from its boot, looking forward to the conclusion he would cause in the Alhambra when he shot out its lamps.

Then unexpectedly a vision of Lew Chantry came to him as he appeared beside the saloon porch awaiting the trouble he knew was brewing for Chantry. Frank's finger paused on the half drawn trigger, a cool draft lifted the hackles along the back of his neck. He very nearly had made an error, for Chantry leaned heavily toward Jean Cash in sentiment. Slowly he lowered the saddle gun from his shoulder.

"You surprised me, Frank," a husky voice came from the curb line. He turned seeing Lily appear beside an adobe building. "Hyman came to help watch Jonathan," she explained softly. "I went out after a little air. I knew you would be along this way."

"Lily, you're as much out of place in this camp as a preacher at a game table." She stood beside his knee, her light cloak open along its front revealing a 'sleeve' dress. She shrugged, and the scent of her clothes rose to him. "You're here without explanation, too. You just rode into this camp. You rode into something that's bigger than you expected, something that's caught you up, and might kill you. Why don't you ride on?" He merely shook his head. "All that doesn't explain you, Lily. You sing like an artist. Everything about you speaks of being a lady—you don't act like one." His words struck the smile from her mouth. She continued to look at him sharply. "Walking out a dark road to meet a man? You're right, Frank. I wanted to be with you. I want you to hold me."

He held her gaze and when he was sure of what he read in her eyes he leaned over his saddle. Her arms came about his neck and so he lifted, holding her tight. Her mouth pressed warmly against him.

"Well, that's this much. Something I can remember," she said. "That's taking it where you find it, for sure," he said slowly. "Lily, what makes you like this?" "Tomorrow it may not be worth taking. I'm afraid the Cash woman has got your interest. Tomorrow you may be dead."

Her cynicism shook him. "Something's given you a terrible shock, hasn't it?" Again she stepped closer and placed her hand against the black's neck. "You weren't in the war, were you? But you've had something else! It shows—the thing that tempering does to steel, that's what I see in your face. With me, the heat destroyed some quality inside. Before Section I studied with Madam Phipps in Richmond. I saw her go hungry. I saw her steadily weaken, until she was faint. I saw Sheridan's cavalry ride on our town and I asked them not to go into the house. Mother was ill and by that time my father was half insane." She drew a long, deep breath; and Frank could sense the undying hatred she knew toward the soldiers. "A copper-bottomed captain went into the house with a dozen troopers in spite of everything I told him. There was a pistol shot and I knew father had fired at them. When they came out the captain was holding his arm. Blood was running between his fingers. He barely looked at me when he climbed to his saddle. There was smoke coming from the door—and that was the end of my world."

She walked away. She slipped out of her cloak feeling depression lash out at her and grip her. She was conscious of Hyman stepping in from the other room but kept her back to him. She had been over this endlessly in her mind since the first time they had been alone and it wasn't pleasant. When he looked at her she felt like shouting: Where were you 10 years ago? I could have loved you then!

"With a voice like yours, you should be somewhere else." She smiled half sadly. "Then don't get involved with me. I'm not what you believe."

His hands tightened on her arm until they hurt. "I'm asking you to marry me. If you want, I'll take you away from this."

She was silent a long moment. "Hyman, you're in the wrong room. La Tour's counting on you across the hall. Please leave me now."

Planes Collided In Air, Acting Coroner Reports

GRAND CANYON VILLAGE, Ariz. — An Air Force officer and the coroner-in-charge said today investigators discovered "positive evidence" that two super airliners collided in flight before they crashed with 128 aboard in history's worst commercial aviation disaster.

The disclosures were made by Shelby McCauley, of Flagstaff, Ariz., acting coroner, and Capt. Byrd Ryland, commanding the search and body-recovery teams.

McCauley Coccino County justice of peace who took charge of the death scene in the Grand Canyon, said:

"From the evidence that the Civil Aeronautics Board people have seen so far in the TWA wreckage it would indicate that the planes definitely collided."

Ryland said, "there is positive evidence in the wreckage that the two planes hit each other in mid-air."

McCauley and 13 other men, 5 of whom were technical engineers for the Civil Aeronautics Board, spent the night stranded in the mile-deep gorge of the Grand Canyon alongside the TWA wreckage when helicopters were unable to lift them out Monday because of bad wind conditions.

Stay All Night

The party was dropped into the canyon to complete the recovery of the badly charred remains amid the wreckage of the Trans World Airlines Super Constellation and to seek the cause of the tragedy in the details of the wreckage.

Ryland personally flew into the mile-deep gorge for an on-the-ground examination of the TWA wreckage and a flight as close as feasible to the remains of the United Airlines DC7 a mile away.

At 11:30 a. m. CST all further helicopter action for the day was called off, leaving two teams on the river's edge and three paramedics at the TWA site for an overnight stay. All were well-equipped and in no danger.

A section of the United plane was discovered this morning in the Colorado, 6,000 feet below the rim of the canyon and body-recovery teams picked up two bundles of corpses, badly mangled and burned. They were to be brought out later today. A search continued for more remains in and along the river.

Capt. Walter Spriggs, helicopter pilot, told reporters that a total of 21 bundles of remains were removed from the TWA plane today, which, added to the 5 removed Monday made a total of 26. The bundles in some cases were believed to contain portions of more than one body. All were badly charred.

Boy, 13, Says Sudden Urge to Torture Someone Led Him to Stab Cousin to Death

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — A 13-year-old boy's "sudden urge to torture someone" led him to stab his 14-year-old cousin to death in a fashionable section of Springfield, police said Monday.

John Pat Drennon confessed the knife slaying of Carol Drennon at her home last Friday. He led police to the hiding place of a steak knife which he said was the murder weapon.

Carol was adopted daughter of Lawrence Drennon, well-known Springfield contractor and partner of John Drennon Jr., father of the boy who committed the crime.

John Pat told police he had a "sudden urge to torture someone" and first thought of killing another girl whom he saw the morning he killed Carol. But he said the other girl was "on the street and people would have seen me."

The boy told police he talked to Carol at her house for a while and showed her how to start and stop the family automobile, a Cadillac. Then when she started into the house, he struck her once in the back with the knife. She ran a few feet and fell and he said he then stabbed her repeatedly.

The boy said he then knelt beside the body and prayed for "I don't know how long."

The boy is being held by juvenile authorities, pending psychological and psychiatric examinations.

UN Commission Begins Session On Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — The United Nations Disarmament Commission began its 1956 session today, primed for a Russian propaganda offensive designed to capitalize on the Kremlin's announced military cutback of 1.3 million men.

The Soviet Union unexpectedly sent its former "boy wonder" diplomat Andrei A. Gromyko, from Moscow for the meeting of the 12-nation group. The commission comprises the 11 members of the U. N. Security Council, plus Canada.

Gromyko hoped to get the floor early, but the West moved to spike his oratory by inscribing British Minister of State Anthony Nutting as the first speaker on the list.

Nutting was expected to restate the solid position of Britain, the United States, France and Canada that the West will not agree to a reduction of armed forces until settlement of outstanding political problems, chiefly the reunification of Germany is reached, and that any disarmament program must include some cut back of nuclear strength within controllable limits.

He will present, on the West's behalf, a resolution asking the full commission to endorse a set of principles submitted by the West at the London meeting of a sub-committee of the Big Four and Canada. The principles would guide future work on reduction of armaments.

Talks at Standstill In Three-Day Old Strike at Joppa

JOPPA, Ill. — Negotiations were at a standstill today in a three-day-old strike of 200 workers at the Joppa steam power plant.

Members of Local 114 of the International Union of Operating Engineers walked out Saturday night. Supervisory employees of Electric Energy Inc. are operating the plant.

Plant Manager Turner White said no negotiation sessions have been scheduled for the immediate future. It was believed the dispute centered on a wage increase and the length of the contract.

The company wants a two-year contract. The union seeks a one-year pact.

The plant supplies electricity to the Atomic Energy Commission plant across the Ohio River near Paducah, Ky.

Driver Still Remembers Nothing Of Accident Year Ago Claiming Eight Lives

CONROY, Iowa — Clarence Wichmann said today he still remembers nothing about the auto accident one year ago today which claimed the lives of eight persons—including his wife and two daughters.

It was the worst auto accident in the history of State Safety Department records and was the worst in the nation during the July 4 holiday weekend.

Only Wichmann, driver of one car, and Randy Williams, 8, Moline, Ill., a passenger in another, survived.

Wichmann, 31, who farms near here told the United Press he had been on a picnic and had returned home to do chores on his farm and then started off for his brother-in-law's farm.

It was about 7:30 p. m. and still light when Wichmann came to the intersection of U. S. 6 and Iowa 100 near Oxford. He said he stopped his northbound car at the stop sign as he had so many times in the past.

That was the last thing he could recall until nine days later when he woke up at University Hospitals at Iowa City and doctors told him his family was killed.

The other car was driven by Max Williams, 31, Moline, Ill., who was traveling west on U. S. 6. He was en route from Moline to Colfax. The Williams car had six persons in it and Randy was the only survivor. He was critically injured as was Wichmann, but recovered.

The bodies of six of the victims killed outright and two injured fatally were strewn along the highway for 50 feet. City police at Iowa City said three highway patrolmen, sheriff's deputies and passing motorists helped them "pick up the pieces."

Wichmann said "I think about them every day (his family) but it must have been the Lord's will." "I just can't remember anything after stopping for that stop sign," he said. "And I had stopped there hundreds of times before."

"The best advice I could offer to anyone planning to do holiday driving would be to avoid it and stay off the roads," he said. "But if they have to drive, please take it easy."

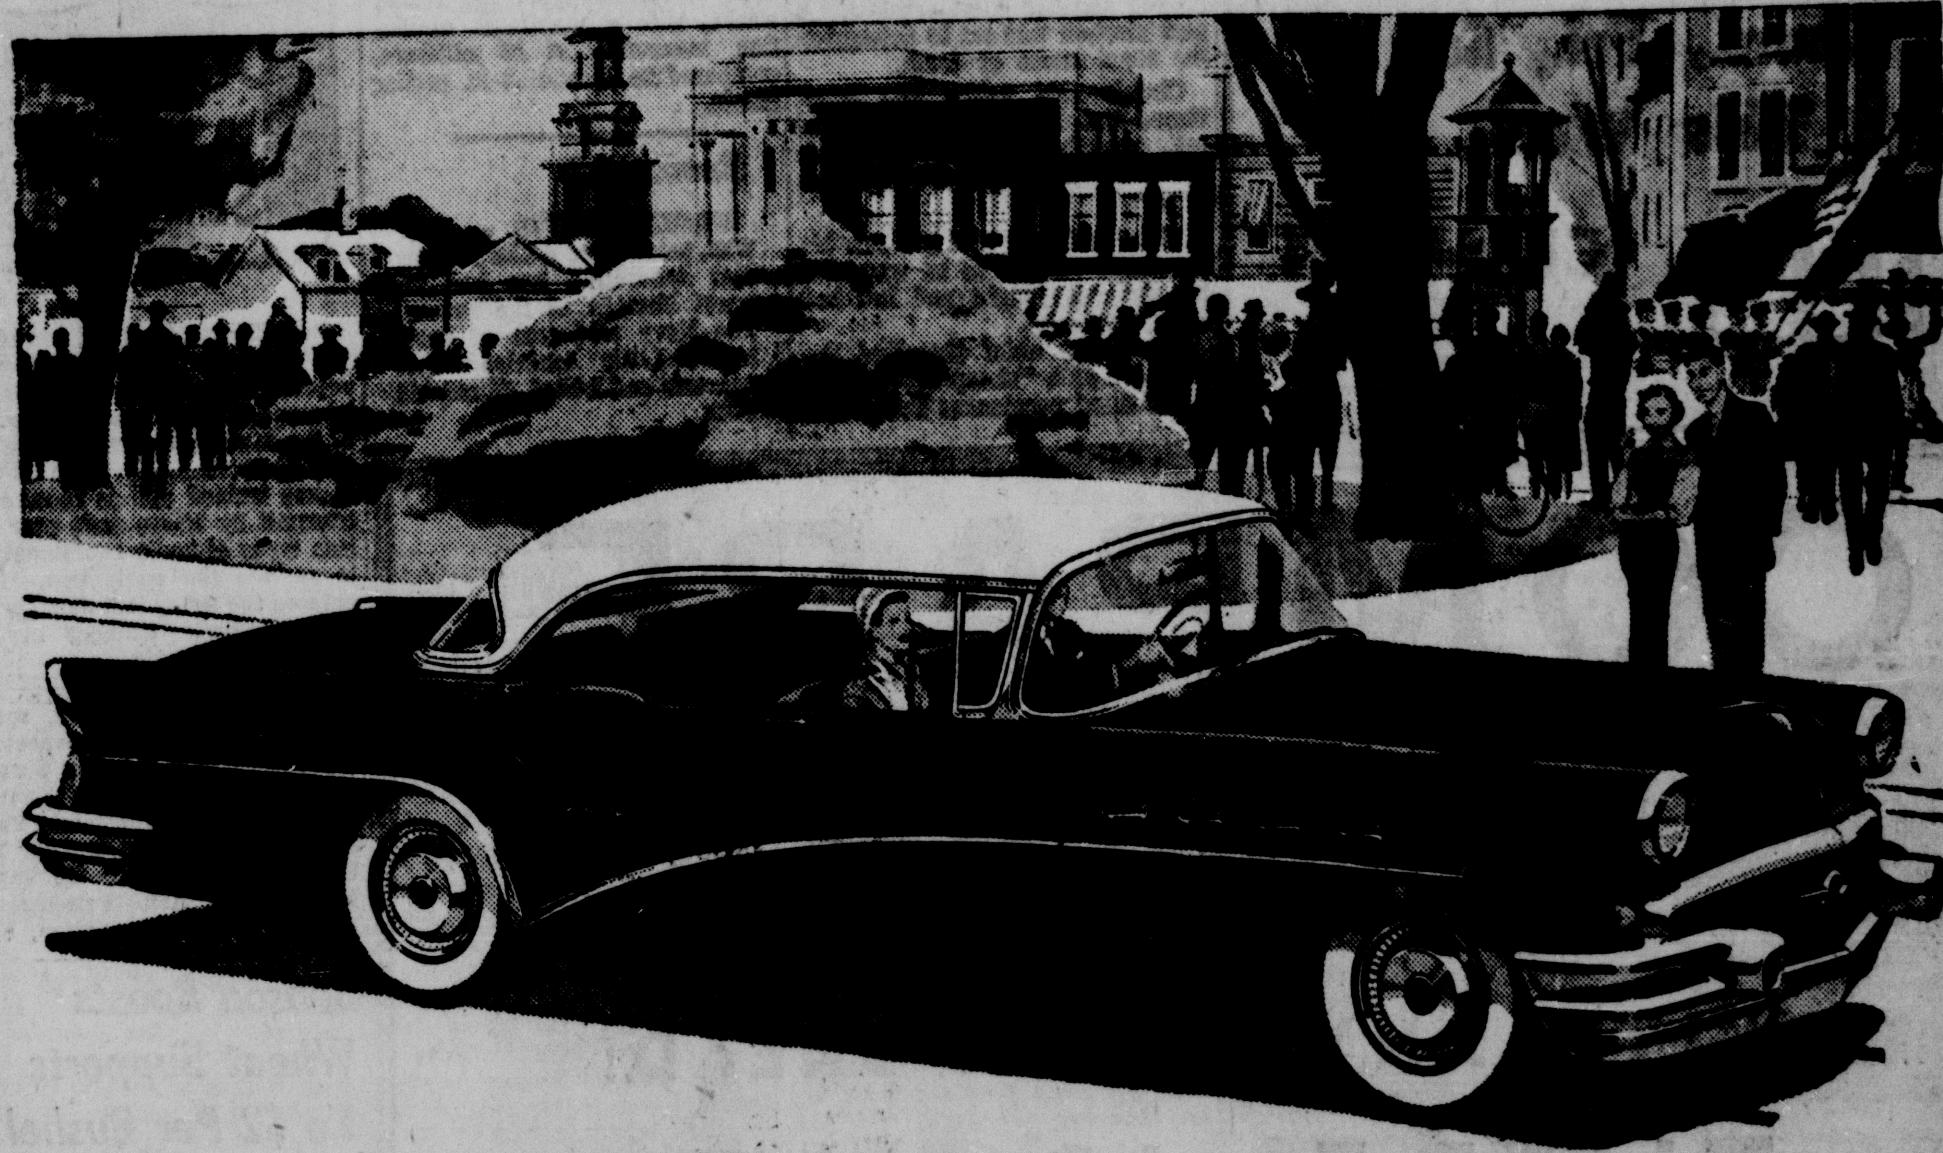

House Approves Women For Army and Air National Guard

Court Stops Driver Kissing

DETROIT — William E. King, 33, Ecorse Township, says he will only kiss his wife when their car is parked. King was arrested on a reckless driving charge when a policeman caught him kissing his wife, Mary Ann, while driving from a wedding. The judge suspended the charge when King promised not to buss his wife while driving.

For Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Snappiness

HERE IT IS July—more than half a year since the opportunity first presented itself for you to try the sizzle and spirit of the 1956 Buick.

And take it from almost a half-million happy new Buick owners—you've been missing plenty.

You've been missing out on the smartness of Buick's new styling—the joy of Buick's great new ride—the new lift and life of the most powerful V8 in all Buick annals.

But most definitely—you've been missing out on the thrills of the most modern transmission in motordom—Variable Pitch Dynaflo.*

For this is the only car transmission in the world that uses the variable pitch principle of today's aircraft to give you two kinds of dazzling performance.

In normal driving, just the first inch of pedal travel gives you instant get-away response—with absolute smoothness—and with new gas savings, because you use so light a throttle pressure.

But when you need split-second pick-up for safety's sake—you floor the pedal, switch the pitch, and zoom out, around and back in lane with an electrifying sweep of power.

So this, you can see, is something too new and too good to pass up any longer. And what it can do for your budget—as well as your spirits—is something you should look into now.

Because the fact is, the price story here is so attractive that Buick outsells all other cars in America except two of the well-known smaller makes. We'll be happy to show you why—and tell you how high the value of your present car is—any time you say.

Why not come in soon—like this week? Today would be even better!

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

House to Take Up Postal Bill Next Week

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower's controversial bill to increase postal rates probably will be taken up in the House next week.

The postal bill would increase first class mail from 3 to 4 cents an ounce and airmail from 6 to 7 cents an ounce.

The House agreed Monday to debate the bill after disposing of the pending school construction measure.

Suffers Fatal Shock While Working Near Live Wires

PETERSBURG, Ill. — Arthur G. Herchy, 31, of Springfield, suffered a fatal shock Monday while working near live wires here.

Dr. T. Z. Plews, Menard County coroner, said Herchy was working with an exterminating crew and apparently came in contact with a live wire when he crawled under a home. Plews said the death was accidental.

Peiping Claims Soviets Test Atomic Plane

TOKYO — Peiping Radio claimed today that the first atomic-power aircraft has been flight-tested in the Soviet Union.

A broadcast monitored in Tokyo said the Russians made the first test flight of a plane "equipped with an atomic reactor" late in 1955.

Quoting an article written by a Soviet engineer in the Russian newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, Peiping said the atomic plane "would be equipped with jet engines run by nuclear energy."

It said atomic-powered jet engines produce "two million times" more heat than gasoline. It added that the article said atomic-powered planes can also be built using conventional propellers.

Admits Fatally Beating Woman Hotel Manager

DANVILLE, Ill. — Police today announced Joel Robertson, 40, has confessed to the slaying of a hotel manager, found beaten to death in her hotel room.

Robertson allegedly had been living with the victim, Mrs. Garret Miller 65, since she separated from her husband about four months ago.

Mrs. Miller, manager of the Biltmore Hotel, was found early Monday nude and lying face down in a pool of blood in her room.

Police Chief Robert Christy said Robertson admitted in a signed statement that he and Mrs. Miller became involved in a violent quarrel concerning where she had been Sunday night.

Christy said Robertson told police he struck Mrs. Miller, then blacked out. When he regained consciousness, Robertson said, he discovered Mrs. Miller dead.

Formal murder charges were to be placed against Robertson later today.

Christy said there are "apparently two or three things involved. . . jealousy and one thing and another."

Robertson earlier had told police he found Mrs. Miller dead when he returned from a drinking excursion. He said he then returned to a bar and notified police of the death.

Mrs. Miller's cheek bones were broken and her chest crushed. A post mortem was set to determine the exact cause of death.

Christy said police also questioned Mrs. Miller's husband, Robert, who lives in another hotel, but "he apparently has an airtight alibi."

Miller told police he last saw his estranged wife when he was with her Saturday night and left her off at her hotel.

The police chief described the Biltmore as a "cheap hotel where a bunch of pensioners live."

Japs Report New U. S. Nuclear Blast

TOKYO — The Japanese government weather observatory claimed today that the United States set off another nuclear explosion this morning at its Eniwetok + Bikini proving grounds.

U. S. officials refused to confirm the report.

The observatory's meteorological section said the reported blast "appeared to be much smaller" than previous tests in recent weeks, with a maximum oscillation measured at .05 millibars, compared to .1 and .2 in earlier blasts.

WASHINGTON — Hot? Well, maybe you'd like to know that Antarctica has had its worst blizzard of the season. The Navy said tons of snow buried Little America headquarters and halted all outside work.

Plan 30-Hour Holiday Traffic 'Death Watch'

SPRINGFIELD — State and local police finished their planning today and stood by to begin an all out effort to hold down traffic fatalities during the Wednesday holiday.

The Traffic Safety Division here announced it would hold a 30-hour "traffic death watch" beginning at 6 p. m. today, for the July 4 holiday. State police arranged to use airplanes to spot traffic violators at critical traffic points.

State Traffic Safety Coordinator Robert A. Campbell said some 50 sheriffs and 144 local police officials have set up a cooperative plan with state police for "the greatest all-out effort for traffic safety during any particular one day holiday period."

Campbell said arrangements have been made with the State Aeronautics Department for the use of a number of planes equipped with a special radio hookup for spotting the "obvious traffic violators."

The "death watch" will be continued through midnight Wednesday to keep a check on the state highway toll and issue periodic appeals to motorists to drive safely.

Campbell and State Police Chief William H. Morris said special emphasis will be placed on arrests of drunken drivers, speeders, and careless and reckless drivers.

Benson Boosts Wheat Supports To $2 Per Bushel

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson used his discretionary powers under the flexible price support law and jacked up the government support price of 1957-crop wheat to $2 a bushel.

Under the current parity price of wheat, this support rate reflects 82 1/2 per cent of parity. The same rate is being paid on 1956-crop wheat.

Benson announced the 1957 support rate Monday, well in advance of the July 20 referendum in which wheat farmers in 36 commercial wheat states will vote whether to accept marketing quotas on next year's crop.

If the producers accept quotas — as they have for several years — the government will support 1957 wheat at $2 a bushel. If they disapprove quotas, the available support level will be 50 per cent of parity, or about $1.21 cents a bushel.

Reds Look More Menacing In National League After 2-1 Victory Over Braves

By United Press
Cincinnati's muscle-men looked more menacing than ever today from their first place perch in the National League race because right-handed pitcher Warren Hacker pitched apparently is back on the beam.

There is a gnawing fear among National League managers that if the Redlegs acquire just a little more pitching they can suddenly turn the wild pennant scramble into a cakewalk. With Klippstein clicking that could be the difference.

Monday night in a showdown battle with Milwaukee for first place, Cincinnati's sluggers for the most part were silenced. The only homer was by Milwaukee's Bobby Thomson.

But Klippstein, turning in his best performance in almost a month held Milwaukee to eight hits and struck out six including two when the Braves threatened in the ninth and genuinely earned his 2-1 triumph.

Klippstein Outshines Spahn

Gus Bell the All-Star center fielder, drove in one of Cincinnati's runs with a single and the other scored on a fumble by third baseman Thomson after Bell had set up the rally with a single.

Klippstein outshining Milwaukee southpaw Warren Spahn, hadn't won a game since June 8. Since then he had tried four previous times for his seventh victory, losing twice and being knocked out of the box the other times. He now has a 7-4 mark.

The third place Dodgers lost ground when the Giants scored a 5-2 triumph on the strength of homers by Willie Mays and Bill Sarni and run - producing extra base hits by Jackie Brandt and Bill White. Allan Worthington gained.

ed his fourth victory with relief help from Hoyt Wilhelm. The Giants moved from eighth to sixth place with the victory.

The Cubs got steady scatter-hit pitching from Warren Hacker to defeat the Cardinals, 6-3. Hacker yielded 11 hits, at least one in every inning but the eighth. Don Hoak and Gene Baker collected three hits each for the Cubs. Hal Smith hit a St. Louis homer.

Chisox Beat Tigers

In the American League the White Sox utilized four Detroit errors to score seven unearned runs, coming from behind for a 9-3 triumph that put them within 3 1/2 games of the idle top-dog Yankees. Two runs scored when usually reliable shortstop Harvey Kuenn fumbled a double play ball as Detroit led 3-1 in the seventh. Jim Rivera drove in the lead run with a sacrifice fly and five more unearned runs came over in the eighth on four singles, a walk, two sacrifices and two more errors.

The Red Sox came from behind to top the Senators 3-2 when Ted Williams touched off a two-run seventh inning rally with a double. Relief pitcher Ike Delock gained his third victory in six days and his fourth of the season.

There were no other major league games scheduled.

Eldorado Loses to Uniontown, 7-4

The Eldorado baseball team lost a 7-4 tilt at Uniontown, Ky., Sunday. Each team collected 10 hits but a wild second inning by Eldorado gave the winners a six-run margin.

B. French hurled and won for the Lions. Woolard and Irvin pitched for Eldorado with Floyd Vinyard catching.

Eldorado will travel to Uniontown again July 8 to meet the strong Kentucky Cardinals, who feature the pitching of Big Jim Bumpus. July 15 Eldorado will play host to Henderson, Ky., at the Raleigh park. Lefty Jim Wallace, who played for the Boston Braves and the Evansville Braves, will hurl for Henderson.

Eldorado will practice at the Raleigh diamond at 5 p. m. Friday.

Legion Drops 7-3 Decision to Carterville Stars

The Harrisburg Legion played ball as it shouldn't be played Sunday afternoon and gave the Carterville Stars an easy 7 to 3 win. The locals played one of their most lackadaisical games of the season committing seven errors afield while getting eight hits at bat and nullifying them with some weird base running to aid the visitors in their victory.

Don Wallace pitched all the way for the Legion and gave up only six base hits good for one earned run which came in the eighth as Reynolds doubled and Bollinger tripled. The locals finally amassed four base hits in the sixth to score their three tallies via the earned run route after miffing several other scoring chances in the earlier innings.

Dallas, Logsdon and Sisky came up with two hits each for the Legion while Mills and Roper connected safely once. Reynolds had two of the six hits the visitors collected. Noakes was the winning hurler all the way with Grier doing the catching. Dick Romonosky caught all the way for the Legion.

Wednesday, July 4, the Legion will play the Evansville CIO Streaks here at VFW Memorial Field. Big Joe Nichols is likely to do the hurrying for the visitors. Nichols has set back practically all the good teams in the Evansville area this season and is regarded as one of the fastest throwing pitchers in these parts. Game time will be 2:15 p. m. Local players should be on hand by 1 p. m. for pre-game practice.

Joey Giardello Knocks Out Tony Baldoni in First

NEW YORK — Former middleweight contender Joey Giardello may have earned a trip back to Madison Square Garden next month by his flashy, first-round knockout of Tony Baldoni in Monday night's TV fight at St. Nicholas Arena.

Philadelphia's Joey said today, "I'm ready to meet the ranking contenders again." And Managing Director Harry Markson of the International Boxing Club, said, "We are considering Giardello as a possible August opponent for Rory Calhoun."

Unbeaten Calhoun of White Plains, N. Y., boasts 22 straight victories. Giardello, weighing 159 1/2 pounds to Baldoni's 158 1/2, knocked out the slugger from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., at 2:46 of the first round before about 800 fans in St. Nick's.

Sign Five-Year Series, All-Star TV-Radio Pact

NEW YORK — It will take 325-million razor blades at a nickel apiece to pay for the gigantic new five-year world series and All-Star game television and radio contract being set up today by the commissioner of baseball at an overall price of $16,250,000.

Major league baseball players will receive retirement payments of up to $200 a month and gain numerous other benefits from the new contract. Commissioner Ford Frick announced signing of the new contract at $3,250,000 a year Monday and it will go into effect next summer with the 1957 All-Star game. Although there was active bidding by several would-be sponsors including one which agreed to match the safety razor offer at the last minute, Frick said that the present sponsor would have been chosen in any duplicate bid situation because of the "cordial relationship" that has existed with them in the past.

Actually, the broadcasting rights were sold to the National Broadcasting Co. acting on behalf of the sponsor and NBC, of course, receives exclusive rights to the big baseball extravaganza. "We are deeply gratified that as a result of this agreement the pension fund for baseball players now is protected and guaranteed for another five years," said Frick. "It is anticipated that it now will be possible to offer even more liberal benefits under the player pension plan, which already is one of the most generous in existence."

Pirates, Crab Orchard and Sugar Creek Win Kiwanis League Games

By David Nelson

The Pirates continue to dominate play in the Pony League of the Kiwanis summer program as they won their eighth game in a row, beating Raleigh, 13-5. Both teams had only four hits, off Howton and Taylor, but the Pirates capitalized on walks to win. Morgan led the winners at bat with a home run and a double and Taylor had two safe blows for the losers.

Hasting tripled home the winning run in the sixth as Crab Orchard edged the Braves in a thrilling ball game, 10-9. Henshaw and Heffner pitched a two-hitter for the Braves, but five errors in the third, when five runs scored, caused their defeat. Hasting and Bobaby combined on the hill for the winners as they gave up eight base hits, but their teammates made only two errors. Howton and Heffner led the losers at bat with three singles and a homer and single respectively.

Sugar Creek exploded for nine runs and all of their five hits in the fifth as they beat Pankey's, 13-4. Gibbons was pitching a no-hitter but had given up four walks going into the fifth, when he was replaced by Boone. It was then that the big rally started. Karnes pitched for Sugar Creek which won its seventh game in a row, allowing seven base hits. Skelton homered for the winners and Trammel had two safeties for the losers.
